Step 3: Update your providers

Please let your providers know that nib Thrive is now your plan manager. You or your providers can send us invoices directly by emailing claims@nibthrive.com.au or submitting through the nib Thrive Portal.

Step 4: Submit and approve invoices

Submitting your invoices has never been easier. Here's how it works at nib Thrive.

1. A provider creates an invoice after delivering their services.
2. You, your provider, or your authorised representative can upload the invoice to the nib Thrive Portal, or the invoice can be emailed to claims@nibthrive.com.au
3. There are two ways invoices are then authorised:
 - a. A standing authority is where you can choose to tell us to always pay your invoices to a certain provider, or all of your providers. If you have set up standing authority for the provider, the invoice will be assessed and submitted for payment. We will confirm with you when payment is made. If you want to stop payment of an invoice, you will need to tell us within 24 hours of our confirmation that the invoice has been paid.
 - b. A manual authority is where you choose to authorise each invoice before we can make payment. If you choose to manually authorise your invoices, after assessing the invoice, we will contact you to provide approval either via the nib Thrive Portal or email. We will try to contact you to confirm payment of the invoice within three business days. If we don't hear from you within this timeframe, we will pay the invoice on your behalf.
4. nib Thrive will submit the claim to the National Disability Insurance Agency (NDIA) and have funds deducted from your NDIS budget once the claim has been processed.
5. Once the NDIA releases funds from your NDIS plan, we will pay your provider and send them a remittance advice.

Choosing a Provider

Choosing an NDIS provider who meets your needs is essential to ensure that you receive support that helps you achieve your goals. The right provider will not only meet your specific needs but will work with you in a way that makes you feel comfortable and respected. Here is our guide to making the right choice:

Is your provider NDIS registered?

A good place to start is to check that a provider is registered with the NDIS. You can check a provider's registration by searching for their ABN in the NDIS Provider Register.

Consider their experience and expertise

Look for providers who have experience in delivering the specific services you need and consider asking other NDIS participants for recommendations or reading reviews to get a sense of their quality of service.

Check for flexibility and personalisation

Your needs and goals may change over time, so make sure to choose a provider who is flexible and willing to adapt to those changes. A good provider will work with you to adjust your support as needed to ensure that you continue to receive the best possible care.

Don't be afraid to ask questions

When meeting with a potential provider don't be afraid to ask questions. Some questions you might ask them are:

- How long have you been providing NDIS services?
- What does your support process look like?
- Have you worked with participants with similar needs to mine?
- How will your services or support help me work towards my goals?

Making a claim

When making a claim on your NDIS plan you should first make sure that what you're claiming is considered 'reasonable and necessary'. Understanding what is 'reasonable and necessary' can help determine what support you may need in your plan and what you may be able to claim.

How does the NDIS define 'reasonable and necessary'?

Reasonable – a service or item that is considered to be fair.

Necessary – a service or item you need because of your disability.

On 3 October 2024 the government released new legislation that outlined changes to the NDIS. These changes aim to improve the NDIS experience for participants by providing clearer parameters for what is and isn't 'reasonable and necessary'.

While each claim and case is different, the NDIS generally will allow claims that support capacity building, increased independence, and support access and participation in community activities.

A full list of supports funded by the NDIS can be found at ourguidelines.ndis.gov.au/would-we-fund-it/what-does-ndis-fund

Why is it important to track funding?

Tracking your funds helps you to make the most out of your plan and ensure that your support lasts throughout the year. Your NDIS plan is designed to help you achieve your goals so keeping a close eye on how your funds are being spent allows you to make sure your budget is being spent in a way that benefits you the most.

Avoid overspending or running out of funds

One of the biggest reasons to track your funding is to avoid the risk of running out of budget before the end of your plan. If you don't regularly check how much you have spent, you might unknowingly exceed your budget, which could leave you without necessary supports later on. We have made tracking your budget simple with the nib Thrive Portal. Log in to view your budget dashboard. If you would like to set up an account to access the nib Thrive Portal, contact us on 1800 999 333 or email enquiries@nibthrive.com.au

Stay on top of your spending

By regularly reviewing your spending, you can stay on top of where your funding is going and quickly catch any mistakes, such as overcharges or incorrect billing. It is easier to fix mistakes when you catch them early. Monitoring your budget and invoices helps to keep your plan running smoothly.

Empowering you

Keeping track of your funding can help to empower you to make decisions and stay in control of your NDIS plan. By being aware of what supports are being charged to your plan you can make sure that all claims align with the NDIS guidelines. Knowing where your funds are going can give you peace of mind that your NDIS funds are being used in the right way to support your needs.
